Neurocritical Care

Sang-Bae Ko, MD, PhD

Department of Neurology, Seoul National University College of Medicine

Neurocritical Care is one of the rapidly developing fields in clinical neurology. Over the recent 10 years, several landmark randomized trials have been performed, which dramatically changed clinical practice patterns. Literature searches were performed using Pubmed, which includes high evidence level clinical studies in neurocritical care field with limiting publication date from July 2014 to October 2015. Here, we will briefly overview the recent progress in neurocritical care.
