

Eye movements in dementia

이 익 성

순천향의대

Eek-Sung Lee

Department of Neurology, Soonchunhyang University Bucheon Hospital

Eye movements are a source of valuable information to clinicians as abnormalities of them frequently act as clues to the localization of a disease process. Patients with dementia have disturbance in basic ocular motions and higher visual cognitive behaviors. In this lecture, I will review some of the major ocular motor abnormalities present in dementia

Eek-Sung Lee

Department of Neurology, Soonchunhyang University
Bucheon Hospital
E-mail: eeksung@gmail.com